Sag Harbor, which has so many charming shops with interesting items and some that offer antiques. I love to wander around there and discover new stores and items.” redhorse-market.com

The 1818 Collective

“Located in the heart of Sag Harbor, The 1818 Collective offers shoppers a perfect blend of new and vintage furnishings. The owners have impeccable taste and constantly curate a stunning European antique collection and unique finds from around the world. The building, a historic Greek Revival home, spurs creativity into the space, making the shopping experience truly immersive. I pop into this shop whenever I’m in the Hamptons, even if it’s just for inspiration.” the1818collective.com

RE Steele Antiques

“A true hidden gem, RE Steele Antiques is one of my favorite spots for art and accessories. Russ, the owner, is incredibly knowledgeable in the art and design world, making every visit an opportunity to discover one-of-a-kind pieces with rich history and character. I’ve gotten some of my favorite accessories from here, including many pieces in my home.”

Gustavo Olivieri

“Every piece in Gustavo Olivieri is more special than the last. What makes it such a great place to shop is the wide variety of pieces in every category. Think oversized Willy Guhl planters, like the ones I have in my backyard, or an antique rope buoy from a shipyard that found a home in one client’s waterfront kitchen. It’s always an adventure browsing through the shop’s ever-evolving selection.” gustavoolivieriantiques.com

Ma-Tine

“Founded by interior designer Marie-Christine, Ma-Tine is a treasure trove of French-inspired vintage furniture. Whether I’m looking for inspiration or the perfect finishing touch for a project or shoot, her beautiful collection never disappoints. Marie frequents Europe to source the best furnishings.” mariechristinedesign.com/shop

Interior designer Hilary Matt checks in to share her Hamptons hit list for the best home stores of the East End.

Treasure Hunt

“The home and decor market in the Hamptons has grown tremendously,” says NYC- and Hamptons-based interior designer Hilary Matt (hilarymatt.com). “There are so many options for amazing home stores, some with antiques, some without. It is one of my favorite places to source home decor because I love supporting small businesses and shops. In my business, I love discovering something new since so much tends to repeat.”

Red Horse Market

“My two favorite areas to shop for furnishings are the Red Horse Market shopping center in East Hampton, which is filled with a handful of my favorite antique shops, and
